

THE SPOUT SPRING TIMES.

VOL. 1.

SPOUT SPRING, KY., FEB. 8, 1896.

NO. 4.

Last Sunday was a very rainy day so the boys of this vicinity, couldn't get out much, which made it very unpleasant for the boys, but splendid on horse flesh.

Teacher—"You've omitted something Ma' bel, in making your V's. What is it?"

Ma' bel—"I forgot to put eye-brows over them."

W. J. BARNETT,
CUSTOM MILLER
SPOUT SPRING, KY.

W. G. PATRICK;
DEALER IN
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
SPOUT SPRING, KY.

J. E. BURGHER,
DEALER IN
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
SPOUT SPRING, KY.

forgot to put eye-brows over them.

The other day, while Ben Burgher and Asa Barnett was hauling saw-dust, Bud perched himself upon a stump, and was sitting there when he discovered a number of young ladies riding down the road, and among them was one whom he admired very much, when he quietly crawled down and shoeked saw-dust like an industrious fellow.

Many papers of Kentucky, are advocating the plan of farmers painting their names on their houses that passers-by may know the habitation of every farmer along the road.

THE TIMES

Published

WEEKLY

AT

SPOUT SPRING, KY.

Subscription rates

30 cents per year.

Subscribe for it.